Laura Cullen, DNP, RN, FAAN leads Evidence-Based Practice at University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics. She is known for her innovative education programs, integration of EBP within the infrastructure and supporting adoption of EBPs by staff nurses and multidisciplinary teams. Her work has led to adoption of innovative practices; improved patient safety; reduced nosocomial events; improved patient, family and staff satisfaction; reduced hospital LOS and costs; and transformation within many organizations' EBP infrastructure. Laura is a mentor, PI or co-PI on several small EBP and research grants supporting translation of research into practice. She is PI on a feasibility grant evaluating nurse's cognitive work with use of evidence-based pain management and is partnering with faculty at the University of Iowa College of Engineering introducing human factor engineering to address clinical issues. Laura is co-PI on a translational research grant studying sustainment of evidence-based fall prevention. She has dozens of publications and national and international presentations. Laura is Adjunct Faculty and has her BSN and MA from the University of Iowa, College of Nursing and received her DNP from the University of Minnesota. Laura served as the US representative on an international panel for Sigma Theta Tau International creating an EBP position statement. Laura co-authors a regular column on evidence-based practice in the Journal of PeriAnesthesia Nursing and is on the editorial board of the American Journal of Nursing. She sits on the grant review panel for the DAISY Foundation. She has also received multiple awards for her work, is a Fellow in the American Academy of Nursing and was named one of Iowa's 100 Great Nurses in 2011.
